Catawbas Awarded Fish & Wildlife Conservation Grants

WASHINGTON – The Catawba Indian Nation has been awarded two federal grants to help conserve fish and wildlife on tribal lands, according to U.S. Rep. John Spratt (D-SC).

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service awarded the tribe $200,000 under the Tribal Landowner Incentive Program and $250,000 under the Tribal Wildlife Grants program. The programs are similar to cost-share programs aimed at helping states, local communities, and private landowners undertake wildlife conservation projects.
